

The main aim of the college is to become the centre for higher learning for those students who are socially disadvantaged and even among them the most disadvantaged and are deprived of higher education because of various socioeconomic reasons. Autonomous status provides them with the best learning ambience by providing divergent and relevant academic courses and the best infrastructure on par with the ones available elsewhere so that, even the students from rural and socially disadvantaged groups are not deprived of those facilities. To achieve this goal new courses are to be opened and a more scientific teaching and evaluation system have to be introduced, which is possible only with autonomy. The college is interested in the enrichment and development of academic, cultural, scientific and technical resources of the college and to develop the institution as a centre of academic, cultural and research activities.

To Introduce Academic reforms. Start new courses at the UG level, which are specifically useful to students. To start new PG courses so that, students get more opportunities to pursue higher studies, which they are denied. Certificate and diploma courses, which are academically and socially relevant and value addition to the present learning. Increase industry institution collaborative activities Increase employability rate. Increase the transition rate from I year to II years by conducting Bridge courses and orientation programmes. Improvement in Communication skills of students. Organize more entrepreneurship development programmes. Industrial visits for the students. Organize career development programs. To restructure the syllabus to suit the vision of the college. For instance, the language content can be restructured to create: gender sensitization among the students, awareness about women empowerment by including success stories of women achievers, awareness about various gender-specific problems and the means to surmount them, awareness of constitutional rights and legal aid, an awareness of the various dimensions of violence on women and its impact on the larger society - in the curriculum. At the same time, language skills are taught in such a way that it equips them to feel confident to face the challenges of academics and also the job market. Develop innovative community linkage activities. To include courses like physical education and performing arts, and community services as part of the course so that the present activities like sports, NSS will be much more meaningful and effective.
